Dr. Colchrans said he made a most mortem examination yesterday on the body of deceased, and found extensive disease of the bowels, sufficient to account, for death. Otherwise the deceased was healthy. The deceased had ovidently been ill about four or five days. He did not think that deceased could ever have recovered. The Coroner said the only evidence before thom was Dr. Cochrane's and the Chinese, who could not be depended upon, in fact, he might say that the evidence of the Chinese witnesses was altogether unreliable. There was no evidence of violence, and therefore Dr. Cochrane showed the cause of death, in saying deceased was incurable from disease of the bowels. The Jury without any hesitation returned a verdict of death from natural causes. The Inquest then closed, having lasted from
